

Leadership Training for Supervisors

In Partnership with

IMPROVE PRODUCTIVITY

Train your Supervisors to “Lead — not just manage” and watch your organization reach higher levels of achievement. Front Line Leadership enforces the principle that every level of supervisor is responsible for creating an environment in which people understand what is expected of them, can communicate effectively with each other, are involved in decision making and take accountability for the work entrusted to them. Through this shared responsibility and accountability it has been shown consistently that measurable improvement in productivity will be achieved.

As of Fall 2017, over 3000 Supervisors have benefited from the Front Line Leadership program.

“Covered the basics and more. The small size of the class gave us lot of time to interact and tackle work-place issues/problems. Very hands-on program.”

Supervisor - Plastics Industry

“My organization has worked with Catalyst Training for the last 5 years and over that time we have enrolled upwards of 20 supervisors through their Front-Line Leadership Program. We used both the in-house and external enrollment options to get our supervisors through the 2 to 4 day formats and the feedback from our people has been very positive. We are very pleased with how the program has benefited our people and so have decided to use it as a core program for all our new and upcoming supervisors.”

LEADERSHIP

THE FOUR STEPS

Participants must recognize that they are all leaders and that this brings with it many responsibilities. As a leader, one of the main responsibilities is to know how to set goals for their own success and for the success of and the organization.

The ability to communicate effectively is a critical leadership skill and when done effectively it has a profound impact. One of the challenges front line leaders face is the ability to manage time effectively. Managing time successfully increases productivity, reduces stress and improves team effectiveness.

Coaching, and training and development are key employee development skills that leaders must exhibit to create high performance employees. Then, handling performance, discipline, attitude and conflict issues becomes less of a problem for the high performing leader.

The last step is to understand the principles of employee motivation and how to create a high performing team. A leader that understands the principles of employee motivation, has the ability to build a high-performance team and is able to achieve high employee engagement.
